

ABSTRACT

In a method of generating X-ray or EUV radiation, a substance is urged through an outlet to generate a jet in a direction from the outlet, at least one energy beam is directed onto the jet, the energy beam interacting with the jet to generate the X-ray or EUV radiation, and the temperature of the outlet is controlled, such that the stability of the jet is improved. An apparatus is also disclosed.